The parameter "AC output voltage" is commonly found in inverter specifications and is a key characteristic defining an inverter's performance. While it might seem to refer to the voltage output from the inverter's AC side, this is a misunderstanding. An inverter doesn't produce voltage independently; rather, it synchronises with the grid voltage.

In normal operation, with mains supply present, both output voltage and frequency will track the input voltage and frequency respectively. As the inverter is switched off when the UPS is operating normally, the term "Offline" is given to any UPS of this design. The inverter output on Offline UPS is typically a square-wave.

Instead of sending energy from every panel to a single inverter, microinverters convert the DC energy to AC energy on the roof itself. Microinverters are located on the roof ...
